Re: SCHOLARSHIP Application to USYD – ANDREI AGNEW

Andrei Agnew attended Sydney Grammar School from 2015 to 2020 after attending Caringbah North Public School. As his Housemaster, I have had a close association with him since he entered the House in Form II in 2016. He has always impressed me with his determined approach and modest bearing. He is mature, self-reliant, diligent and conscientious in all his endeavours. He was a worthy recipient of the Bruce Turnbull Academic Scholarship which was given to him upon entry. In 2019 he was awarded the Director of Music Award. This year he is a candidate for the Higher School Certificate in English Advanced, Mathematics Extension I and Extension II, Physics, Chemistry and Music with excellent prospects of success. His estimated ATAR is 96.50.

In his last year at the School, Andrei was appointed Prefect and carried out his duties admirably, earning the Lethbridge King Prize in recognition of his exemplary role. Andrei has made an extensive co-curricular contribution to the School, particularly in music. He was a member of the School Choir 2018-2020, Grammarphones 2019-2020, Big Band 2017-2020, Wind Ensemble 2019-2020 and the ARIA Quartet (Saxophone quartet). He participated in the Australian Combined Music Festival in 2019, the Music Composition Club 2017-2020 and was appointed to the Music Committee in 2019 and 2020. In sport, he rowed, finishing his career in the Third IV in 2019. He also played volleyball and winter tennis. He received his House Sports Award, House Arts Award and House Colours in 2019. He competed in the Chemistry Olympiad in 2018, attended Informatics Club 2018-2020 and competed in the Informatics Olympiad in 2019 and 2020. Andrei generously gave of his time to the Audio-Visual team in 2017 and 2018. He was also a Peer Support leader and helped on Form I camp in 2019. This year he was heavily involved in the Prefects Charity.

Andrei is an intelligent, polite and good-natured young man. He is considerate of others and is always courteous. He has many varied interests which he pursues enthusiastically. With his keen desire to succeed and solid work ethic, he is determined to reach his goals. I highly recommend Andrei and support his application for a University of Sydney Scholarship.

ANDREI AGNEW VI CXR/SD - TERM III 2020

Tutor's Letter to Housemaster

Dear Caterina,

Andrei has come through 2020 unscathed. He improved his rank in Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry and maintained his position on aggregate. More importantly, he is applauded by his masters for his participation, attentiveness and inquisitive nature.

Andrei's music commitment to the School is extensive and impressive. It includes the ARIA Quartet, School Choir, Big Band, Wind Ensemble, Grammarphones and the Music Composition Club. He was also on the Music Committee in 2019 and 2020. He somehow also played chess and attended Informatics Club around his academic and music commitments.

Andrei is an intelligent, polite and good-natured young man. He is considerate of others and always courteous. He has a calm disposition, a desire to succeed and a strong sense of commitment. It has been a pleasure to be his tutor and I hope he stays in touch. I am interested in hearing about his success.

Housemaster

Andrei embodies intelligence, musical acuity and an overall genuine interest in the world around him. It is fitting, therefore, that the Headmaster agreed with my nomination and recommendation and has awarded Andrei the Lethbridge King Prize. He has my best wishes for the weeks and years ahead.

ANDREI AGNEW VI CXR/SD - TERM III 2020

Note that Class Mark and Class Position are based on marked work completed in class and/or for homework during the year. These marks represent the ongoing process of formative assessment, and are distinct from the summative assessment of School examinations.

English Advanced - P Budnik

Class Mark 77 Class Position 6/18

Andrei has been working hard in English, although he did not submit any additional work for feedback prior to the examination period. He consistently applies himself in class but it would be great to see more diligence when completing homework. He performed well in Assessment #3, although it was noted that he needs to work on increasing the detail and analysis of his Textual Conversations essay. For Paper One of the Trial Examination, I know that Andrei was unhappy with his Reading Task result; he must look to practise this section under time constraints over the coming weeks. Andrei did well in the extended response, only needing to develop his evidence detail and discussion of representation. In Paper Two it was noted that he did not adhere closely enough to the conventions of discursive writing for Module C and that his Module A essay was overly general and light on analysis at times. Andrei's Module B response was sound but focused too much on character discussion and was therefore limited in responding to all of the question's terms.

It has been an absolute pleasure teaching Andrei this year - he is a fine young man with a quick wit. I wish him all the best for the upcoming HSC examinations.

Mathematics Extension 1 and 2 - RP Lovelock

Class Mark 93 Class Position 3/16

Andrei should be justly proud of his Trial Examination results, particularly in the Extension 2 paper where he topped his class. His excellent work ethic and friendly inquisitive nature have set him in good stead here and this consistent approach is now paying dividends. His Extension 1 paper was also good, although there were a couple of silly slips there and he must take care not to rush, particularly in the multiple choice section, which was also where he lost more marks than he needed in Extension 2. With a continued effort between now and the HSC examinations, revisiting each topic in turn and trying harder questions in each, he should do very well. I wish him all the best in the future.

ANDREI AGNEW VI CXR/SD - TERM III 2020

Physics - PC Knight

Class Mark 83 Class Position 9/17

Andrei has been attentive in his studies, yet his assessments show an inconsistent pattern, but overall he is performing better this year than in Form V. His result of 80% in the Trial Examination was an improvement compared to his previous Analytical Skills assessment and places him in the middle of the Physics cohort. Analysing his examination paper, I can see that his ability to complete physics calculations is very good and he is demonstrating a good basic knowledge of the course content by scoring well in the multiple-choice and many one to two mark questions. His mark in the Nature of Light module was not commensurate with his ability and he should review the underlying concepts of this topic. There were several instances where his extended answers were not awarded full marks because he did not properly address the question or lacked detail. To improve his ability to answer this type of question I would recommend that he construct concise summaries of details that he can include in any HSC question that may require it. I would suggest that he now practise as many sample problems that he can get his hands on. While doing this, I suggest that he take the time to set out and formulate his answers in a concise and precise way.

I wish him well in his HSC Examination.

Chemistry - BE Deschamps

Class Mark 84 Class Position 2/17

Andrei has maintained a polite, happy demeanour throughout Form VI. He listens attentively, applies himself to all set tasks and shares delight when he has conquered a concept. Andrei generally produces excellent results in frequent class quizzes. He produces lower marks in end of unit tests, which may point to a need to revise content more regularly.

Andrei scored a mark below the form average in the Trial Examination. He performed fairly consistently across each topic, with no particular area of weakness, but rather a need to consolidate his understanding and practise his examination technique. His worst section was the multiple-choice, which can be improved by completing the various multiple-choice Schoology quizzes available to him, many of which are past HSC questions. He needs to practise longer explanation-based questions as he regularly lost marks in such questions for a lack of detail in his response, or a lack of familiarity with the content.

ANDREI AGNEW VI CXR/SD - TERM III 2020

Music 2 - NP Vines

Class Mark 83 Class Position 3/6

For many years now, Andrei's congeniality and effervescence in the classroom have been much appreciated. He can always be relied upon to enthuse about the music itself, as well as enquire and comment meaningfully. To a large extent, this positivity came through in his Trial performance, with the markers commenting on his personal style and abundant musicality. It was also present in his core composition, which was characterised by easy funk. If he were to add greater application to the mix, who knows where his ability might take him!

In the final musicology and aural examination, Andrei is encouraged to take the first steps down a more focused path. He did well in the Trial Examination to approach each question with a concept-based or technical checklist. To that, he must now add documentation of as much detail from the primary source - score, recording - as possible: cursory responses based on cursory analysis will not attract high marks. Thorough consolidation of set-work particulars, on top of his already impressive technical understanding, is also recommended for the last question.

My thoughts are with Andrei as he heads into the HSC examinations and the final throes of school. I wish him the very best in the (post-)COVID world and hope he keeps the Music Department up-to-date about his goings-on, especially the musical ones.
