PERSONAL STATEMENT

The origins of the cosmos is one of the most mysterious phenomena in physics. I remember my excitement when I researched about the Big Bang Theory and learnt the intricacies of special relativity. I am fascinated by the formation of stars, planets and life, and the nature of space-time itself. Accompanying this passion is my firm interest in the mechanics behind computerised systems. My projects include planning three-way switches, building a binary calculator from marbles and cardboard, and coding a 600+ line Processing game in Java. I rapidly absorb maps, circuits and diagrams - resulting in my joking nickname, the 'human compass.' My strong physics skills and creativity led me to the field of engineering. USYD's Space Engineering course perfectly combines my passions and strengths. The notion that I may be able to use some of my own skills in physics, computing, creating, to further our scientific knowledge, or to discover new insights into the universe, is incredibly exciting.

KEY ATTRIBUTES

1. Curious and creative problem solver. From three-way switches to one-sided paper, intrigue has prompted me to understand the world not through research, but redesign - and in increasingly creative and challenging ways.
2. Strong work ethic and the motivation to succeed. This is seen in my academic success and my art major work. My third, sculptural element had to be illustrated, laser-etched, inked, sanded, glued and mounted. By dividing these tasks into 11 stages and 51 individual goals, I completed my project in 4 days.
3. Extensive teamwork and time management skills. From debating to da vinci to netball, I've worked successfully in groups in many outcomes. My success lies in my ability to see the big picture, my calm mentality and goal-driven vision.

FUTURE GOALS

My father worked in telecommunications, his career spanning from electro-mechanical switches to modern computerized systems. During my journey from childhood to senior physics, I badgered him (to varying degrees of success) about everything from ground wires to fax machines.

Inspired by my father's knowledge, my aim after pursuing space engineering at university is to use my skills to advance the next revolution in space travel and science. My goal is not to be the astronaut inside the spaceship, but the engineer-physicist who designs the rocket launcher and software to explore space and bring the astronaut home.

I aspire to work in a space agency or company, building the spacecraft and technology to help us enter space. I hope my career will exploit my creativity, problem solving, and passions for computing and space. In the nearer future, I aim to extend myself academically at university. I hope to continue debating, and I would absolutely love to work on the Silvereye project!

Mrs A Dunnett

It has been a pleasure to share Chelsea's senior school years. She embodies the Abbotsleigh values in every respect. Chelsea has taken every opportunity to share her incredible talent across many areas while at Abbotsleigh. Her showstopping Visual Arts Body of Work is symbolic of her strength and reliability under pressure. Chelsea has consistently impressed in a wide variety of sporting, cultural, artistic and scientific areas across the academic spectrum.

Headmistress Comment

Mrs M Krimmer

You are congratulated on your fine report, Chelsea. You have worked assiduously and you have attained superb results; your Visual Arts Body of Work was especially impressive. Well done! Your teachers proffer you sound advice which I am confident you will adopt in preparation for your final examinations. You have fulfilled your role of Year 6/7 Prefect with aplomb and your fine contribution to Abbotsleigh has been appreciated very much. I wish you every success for your future.

- Demonstrates skill in manipulating media and in representing ideas through the Visual Diary and in the making of artworks

ELEMENTARY SATISFACTORY SUBSTANTIAL EXCELLENT

Comment

Chelsea is a passionate and creative student who keenly approaches artmaking from an imaginative and individual point of view. She has made a committed effort to achieve a competent series of artworks and has developed an expressive and experimental approach to printmaking. Chelsea has demonstrated an articulate and intelligent ability to interpret artworks and she writes with maturity and insight. Chelsea has an outstanding understanding of both theoretical frameworks and historical contexts.
