Year 11 Annual Report 2018

Sarah Sweeting

This report should be read in conjunction with the details in the Carer Portal where you will find your daughter's task results and feedback and her Learning Virtues Goals and reflections.

Sarah selected these LEARNING VIRTUE GOALS:

Goal 1.4 - Courage and Purpose: I plan and organise myself to meet deadlines

Goal 2.2 - Discipline and Inquiry: I break large tasks into achievable sections

Goal 3.18 - Respect and Integrity: I am grateful for my learning

Teacher's comment:

Sarah is a deep thinker and an active participant in class discussions. She has had some mixed results this year. Sarah has demonstrated great strength in expressing her ideas orally, however, she will need to bring focus to her written expression as some ideas and sentences are fragmented. Additionally Sarah should ensure that at all times she comments on techniques and their effect, as this was often omitted in the reading task. Sarah is commended for actively seeking assistance.

Teacher's comment:

Sarah has made important strides forward in Extension English. Initially, Sarah struggled to write in such a way that her writing was a fitting representation of her thinking, and to support that thinking with tight, clear analysis. Sarah responded to this initial setback with bravery and courage; with input and support, Sarah has produced a strong set of results which confirm her potential, so clearly seen in class discussion. To continue this improvement, Sarah needs to make a habit of seeking assistance early, so that her thoughts are clear and clearly expressed.

Teacher's comment:

Sarah is a genuine and enthusiastic participant in all Ancient History lessons. She is able to make sensible observations about the work covered in class. Sarah's Semester 2 Examination results reveal the need to write with greater purpose and precision. This will help her to maximise her obvious potential as we move towards more challenging Year 12 course work.

Teacher's comment:

Sarah enjoys learning; she celebrates her successes but may need more discipline in addressing difficulties. Progress will depend on the consolidation of learning that Sarah undertakes independently. Only with regular practice will her understanding translate into deep learning that can be confidently reproduced under examination conditions. Sarah has worked effectively to achieve her Learning Virtue Goals and her practical skills are very sound. She is keen to do well and has already taken the initiative to identify strategies to improve her performance as she embarks upon the HSC Course.

Teacher's comment:

Sarah is an interested and enthusiastic student who engages with economic issues and concepts. Her Semester 2 Examination results were disappointing and do not reflect the understanding of Economics that she has displayed in lessons. Sarah needs to work on her attention to detail, reading questions carefully, planning her response, answering with precision and providing the most relevant information.

Head of Year's Comment:

Sarah is to be commended for this positive report that is indicative of strong application and motivation. It is pleasing to note that she involves herself wholeheartedly in her learning and consequently has reaped the benefits with strong results in a number of subjects. Of particular note is her achievement in Mathematics. Sarah is encouraged to continue with her purposeful revision and to take care with the precision of her writing. Taking time to proofread her work will be essential. Over her time at PLC Sydney, Sarah has displayed a marked awareness that learning takes place in all facets of school life and I commend her for her active co-curricular involvement.

Semester 1, 2019

Subject	Results	Rank	Effort Rating	Comment
English Advanced Ms B Corfield	Task 1A 80% Task 1B 80% Task 2 60%	30/105 10/105 88/105	1	Sarah has worked with interest and commitment this semester and is confident in sharing her insights into texts. I commended her on always making a thorough effort to improve her standard and she has consequently made great gains with her written expression. It will be the redrafting process after feedback and timed practice that will be of most benefit to her learning.
English Extension 1 Dr S Golsby-Smith	Task 1 72%	20/28	1	Sarah thoroughly enjoys the chance that literature gives her to think about moral quandaries and to distil this thinking in class debate. Where Sarah needs to apply herself is in transposing this into careful writing. Sarah works intermittently on her writing; it is abundantly clear that with drafting she can showcase her talent. I encourage her to draft consistently.
Mathematics Miss V Rossides	Task 1 92% Task 2 80%	38/93 36/92	1	See Mathematics Extension 1
Mathematics Extension 1 Miss V Rossides	Task 1 72% Task 2 72%	32/59 49/56	1	Sarah is a diligent student who maintains a high standard of commitment to her studies. She actively engages in all learning activities and asks pertinent questions. Sarah would benefit from reviewing questions that apply her knowledge of curve sketching and integration. She is encouraged to practise examination-style questions.
Chemistry Mrs J McGrouther	Task 1 58% Task 2 74%	31/39 23/36	1	Sarah's goal has been to improve her assessment performance; she succeeded with Task 2 but the elimination of avoidable errors is still a high priority. Sarah's enthusiastic contributions in class ensure she is able to address misconceptions promptly. In order to train herself to minimise errors during examinations, Sarah is encouraged to complete all worksheets with rigorous attention to detail.
Economics Mrs S Waller	Task 1 83% Task 2 65%	11/27 17/26	1	Sarah is an interested and hard-working student. She takes an interest in current affairs and is able to see how these events relate to her study of Economics. Sarah has made considerable progress in improving the structure of her written responses. She should continue to work on this, in particular by carefully reading the set questions and taking time to plan her responses.

Co-curricular Activities: School Vice-Captain

Head of Year's Comment:

Sarah is a sincere and articulate individual and is to be commended for her interest in her learning. She has made a number of strong achievements across assessment tasks. Her teachers have indicated that Sarah would benefit from time drafting her responses in order to develop logic and structure and to eliminate avoidable errors. Beyond the classroom, Sarah has lent strength to the leadership team through her collaboration and good humour in her role as School Vice-Captain. She is most reliable. I wish Sarah well as she continues her studies.
