Semester 1 Report

2017

Information for parents of students

This report is a summary of your child's progress and achievement across his academic program in Semester 1. In preparing the report, staff have sought to be objective and give a clear, honest, and precise assessment.

Most reports contain a diagnostic element, suggesting areas of focus for student guidance and attention. Parents are encouraged to use this report as a basis for discussion with their sons on their performance to date and to celebrate achievement of academic goals as well as identifying areas for further improvement. This may call for changed expectations, changed attitudes, improved study habits, resetting goals, or a combination of these.

School reports should always be interpreted with a view to the future. Students should be encouraged towards personal excellence and the maintenance of grades consistent with their ability and academic potential.

Course Grades

Students will receive a grade which reflects their achievement with each of their courses of study.

Course grades will describe student achievement as follows.

Grade	Rating	Elaboration
A	Excellent	The student demonstrates excellent achievement of what is expected for this year level.
B	High	The student demonstrates high achievement of what is expected for this year level
C	Satisfactory	The student demonstrates satisfactory achievement of what is expected for this year level.
D	Limited	The student demonstrates limited achievement of what is expected for this year level.
E	Very Low	The student demonstrates very low achievement of what is expected for this year level.

Attitude and effort ratings

The Attitude and effort rating system is based on the frequency to which students have demonstrated positive learning behaviours related to each of the following affective descriptors.

Is well-prepared and organised	C	Consistently
Completes set homework and assignments to a high quality	F	Frequently
Responds to others with respect and courtesy	S	Sometimes
Engages actively in learning to achieve personal best	R	Rarely

Ryan has proven himself to be an excellent student of Chemistry. From day 1 this year, Ryan has stepped up his commitment to his Chemistry studies, determined to succeed, and it is paying off. I have been extremely impressed by his growth and maturity this year, a young man confident in his abilities and supportive and helpful to his peers. Ryan achieved an excellent Semester 1 examination result consolidating his strong B grade for Chemistry. Ryan's decision to take up Titrations as his Friday afternoon activity was a smart one, as this is sure to help develop his volumetric analysis skills and consolidate his understanding of acids and bases, two challenging topics. Ryan will continue to excel in this subject, if he keeps up his outstanding work ethic for the remainder of the year. An A grade is definitely an achievable goal for Ryan and I hope to see him reach it by the end of Semester 2.

Ryan remains an enthusiastic, conscientious and polite student who has achieved at a consistently high level throughout this semester. He has demonstrated a sound grasp of the material covered and is beginning to develop the ability to analyse and evaluate economic concepts and issues. His excellent examination result should provide a firm foundation on which to build in the final term. Ryan should now focus on developing his evaluative and analytical skills if he is to reproduce his examination mark in the WACE examination. He should also ensure that he stays abreast of developments and events in the Australian economy and, where relevant, incorporate into his answers. I would recommend that he also attempts a number of past examination questions and obtains feedback on his answers.

Ryan has found some aspects of the Literature course quite difficult. He is to be commended for his perseverance and ensuring that he can construct an adequate response to a given question. He has performed well in oral presentations and prepared essays where he gets more time to consider and review his work. However, in order to achieve better results, he needs to undertake a comprehensive study and review program. His revision should include using the study materials provided to answer practice questions under test conditions so that he can build his skills and confidence. He also needs to develop the sophistication of his written expression and style. His knowledge of texts and grasp of concepts is adequate but he sometimes does not achieve to his potential when having to formulate his ideas into an essay response under timed pressure.

Ryan has completed a positive and rewarding semester and has achieved some excellent results on the assessment tasks given, particularly after a lower than expected result on the most recent Investigation. I am pleased with the work ethic he demonstrates in class and with his quiet participation in both class activities and discussions. Ryan has displayed a fine understanding of the course and he is able to apply this understanding to a variety of complex problems. Ryan's examination result was most pleasing and reward for his efforts this semester but I would also encourage him to review his calculator section, as this was the weaker of the two sections in the paper. The examination did highlight the need to revise probability functions and curve sketching. Ryan has a quiet yet strong determination that will stand him in good stead for the remainder of the year.

I have been impressed by the mature and diligent manner in which Ryan has tackled the challenges of the Mathematics Specialist course so far this year. He is a conscientious student who utilises his class time effectively. Ryan participates well during class discussions and seeks assistance if required. I encourage him to continue to do so. As part of his preparation for the recent examination Ryan grasped the opportunity to seek assistance and feedback on past examination questions that he had attempted. This is an important part of the revision process, and I encourage him to continue to tackle challenging examination questions. Ryan achieved sound results in tests and investigations, with averages of 76% and 78% respectively. He also performed well in the recent examination, which ranked him 3rd in the cohort for this important assessment, and places him 3rd overall. For the remainder of this year, Ryan's study time must include a revision programme that enables him to revisit earlier topics covered and consolidate his understanding of the new concepts introduced. Ryan is to be commended for his efforts and thoroughly deserves this A grade.

Ryan is making excellent and consistent progress in all areas of the course. He is able to think and act independently and as a result, has developed excellent conceptual understandings of the course material. His efforts with the Physics calculations are most impressive and he has a real confidence in problem solving with Mathematics. Significantly, Ryan is capable of transferring past learning to new contexts, but he must be wary of including sufficient depth of explanation when describing Physics concepts in order to achieve excellent success at WACE level. His semester examination was most impressive and he continues to improve, however it is essential that he checks over the examination to make sure that he includes enough relevant Physics detail.

Pastoral Comment

Mr Melvyn Weston, Head of House

While Ryan should be pleased with the majority of his achievements this semester, I know he is keen to improve on these in the second half of the year. He is undertaking a challenging and demanding course of study and he is able to balance it well with a busy and full co-curricular program. Ryan needs to work closely with his teacher in English Literature to try and improve the level of his achievement as he moves towards the final examinations. Ryan is a highly regarded and admired member of both Guildford Grammar School and in particular St George's House. He has displayed fine leadership qualities and integrity in the way he goes about his academic studies and he is a fine example and role model for the younger boys. I have appreciated the support that Ryan has given me this semester within St George's House and I wish him well for the remainder of the year and in whatever direction life takes him.
